Rainmaker EVP Adelaide Ness Adds Vanderbilt University Teaching Role

Adelaide Ness, Executive Vice President, recently began teaching at Vanderbilt University, supplementing her training, coaching, and leadership role at The Rainmaker Companies. Vanderbilt, based in Nashville, was rated this month as the No. 14 University in the United States by U.S. News and World Report.

Adelaide will be taking the skills she has acquired and honed through her work at The Rainmaker Companies and will be transferring those to seniors at Vanderbilt University majoring in Human and Organizational Development. In addition, working directly with a top-ranked school like Vanderbilt enhances the perspective and educational best practices that Rainmaker incorporates into its programs.

Adelaide is teaching one class per week as she continues in her role at The Rainmaker Companies. “What I know about what we do at Rainmaker, is that it works,” said Ness. “I just wish most people developed these skills earlier in their lives. I am excited to have that kind of impact on students who are about to graduate and begin their careers out in the world.”
